May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you trust in him, so that you may overflow with hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Therefore encourage one another and build each other up, just as in fact you are doing.

In my youth, old people were dignified. Americans love to learn from old people. TV shows had old people sharing knowledge, truth, wisdom, and love. Hollywood portrayed being old and beautiful, graceful, and wise.

I remember watch TV programs with family members and enjoying the time of enrichment and words of passion, purpose, and caring. Those past memories and still locked in my heart and never forgotten. I have a foundation that was built as a child.

As I went to church, old people would say kind words, inspire, and give guidance directly to the younger kids. I saw those old people as mentor and happy they would spend their precious time to express ideas, faith, and motivation. I couldn't understand full but their trust in each word made it worth listening to. When someone speaks the truth, your heart will know and it from God. The trust shall set you free!

In my youth, it was great to be around old people at church. I thought being old means to be happy at that time. I thought being old means to care for younger people and give them praise. I thought being old meant to be alive and free. In my youth, I carried happiness while talking to old people. Old people would often say things tome at church about my face. "Why are you so happy young boy? Why do you have such a big smile?" I would reply by saying, "Sir, I am just happy to talk and listen to you, sir." But those old church memories of love carries happiness. Happiness is golden and unforgotten. It carries love and thanksgiving from God. I was alive at that time. I was curious about life and the world.
