Science Wonder Stories Quarterly Fall 1929 Vol. 1 No. 1 - Value Priced Replica Edition Edmond Hamilton, Clare Winger Harris, Otto Willi Gail
A page by page reproduction of the very 1st issue of the legendary pulp magazine - featuring two giant book-length novels, short stories, all the original illustrations by Frank R. Paul, vintage advertisements - and a letter column that includes the first letter ever printed from a young Forrest Ackerman, a rhapsodical paean to science fiction.

With its oversized pages and 150 thick pages, Wonder Stories Quarterly could always feature a full-length novel of 50-1,200,000 words and still have room for a cornucopia of short stories and novelettes. For this first issue of WSQ, Hugo Gernsback doubled down with two book length novels, one from a famous European writer of science fiction, the second from the increasingly popular Edmond Hamilton, one of the three best of those pioneering new genre of space opera. Germany's Otto Willi Gail, an engineer with rocketry experience, weighs in with a book, "The Shot into Infinity," (60,000 words) that was a bestseller on the Continent and was highly praised by American fans. SF historian Everett Bleiler hailed it as "A serious attempt to apply rocketry to fiction...rigorous and farsighted in technical matters." Edmond Hamilton, best known for thrilling tales of interplanetary adventure, contributes a 50,000 word change-of-pace novel that, rather than taking his heroes to the further reaches of space, tells a story of equally thrilling adventure in "The Hidden World" beneath the Earth's crust.

There is also a juicy and very pointed novelette by Clare Winger Harris, one of the first women to write for the science fiction for the magazines; plus an almost perfect example of Gernsback's conception of the ideal science fiction story in Henry D. Proctor's "The Gravitational Deflector." Each page specially formatted for convenient set the size yourself pinch-zoom. The next best thing to reading an old pulp of your own.
